As if the streets of New York City weren't rough enough, yesterday Brooklynites had to dodge a wild cow that broke free from a local slaughterhouse. And the wildlife mayhem didn't end there. A new report has shed light on the city's status as a rat hot spot, and the findings may surprise you. Read more on page 4 or visit Metro.us.

US NOT RULING OUT TALKS AFTER N. KOREA THREAT

1 The U.S. is not ruling out the eventual possibility of direct talks with North Korea, Deputy Secretary of State John J. Sullivan said on Tuesday, hours after Pyongyang warned nuclear war might break out at any moment. Talks between the adversaries have long been urged by China in particular, but Washington and its ally Japan have been reluctant to sit down at the table while Pyongyang continues to pursue a goal of developing a nuclear-tipped missile capable of hitting the United States. "Eventually, we don't rule out the possibility of course of direct talks," Sullivan said in Tokyo after talks with his Japanese counterpart. "Our focus is on diplomacy to solve this problem that is presented by the DPRK. We must, however, with our allies, Japan and South Korea and elsewhere, be prepared for the worst, should diplomacy fail," he said.

BIPARTISAN DEAL ON OBAMACARE FIX

2 Two U.S. senators on Tuesday announced a bipartisan breakthrough to shore up Obamacare for two years by reviving federal subsidies for health insurers that President Donald Trump planned to scrap, and the president voiced support for the plan. The agreement worked out by Republican Sen. Lamar Alexander and Democratic Sen. Patty Murray would meet some Democratic objectives, including a revival of the subsidies for Obamacare and restoring $106 million in funding for a federal program that helps people enroll in insurance plans. In exchange, Republicans would get more flexibility for states to offer a wider variety of health insurance plans while maintaining the requirement that sick and healthy people be charged the same rates for coverage.

SANDERS FOCUSES ON SMALLER RACES

5 Sen. Bernie Sanders will focus on getting liberal candidates elected to state and local offices ahead of next year's midterm elections rather than on higher-profile U.S. congressional races, to help build a national progressive movement from the ground up. Sanders said he hoped his emphasis on school boards, city councils and statehouses will help support the next generation of activist progressive candidates and dovetail with the mission of Our Revolution, a nonprofit political group run by former staffers and volunteers for his 2016 presidential campaign. "I look at politics a little bit differently than some of my colleagues in the sense that I believe that we need to build a national grassroots movement," Sanders told Reuters in an interview on Tuesday.

Loose cow captured in Brooklyn

The cow was spotted in the Prospect Park neighborhood Tuesday morning.

MORGAN ROUSSEAU

After causing quite the "commootion," err, commotion throughout Brooklyn Tuesday, the NYPD has captured the loose cow whose escapade went viral, the department said.

Though police told Metro that no one has reported the cow, believed to be a young bull, missing as of yet, the New York Daily News reported that officials believe the calf escaped a Sunset Park slaughterhouse and ran the 2 miles to Prospect Park, where it knocked over a toddler after it was struck by a car before entering the park's Parade Grounds, where it was eventually taken into custody.

The child, a 1-year-old girl, was taken to a local hospital, where she was treated for a busted lip and black eye, the Daily News reported.

According to the NYPD, the cow was first reported running wild through the streets of Brooklyn in the vicinity of 4th Avenue and 16th Street around 11 a.m. before it arrived at Prospect Park. Officers were chasing the loose cow on Coney Island Avenue, according to one Twitter user.

The bull was contained in the sports fields near Prospect Park West, and the NYPD's Emergency Services Unit tranquilized the animal and was then able to secure a rope around its neck to lead it uninjured to a portable horse paddock, the department told Metro. He was taken to an Animal Care and Control center on Linden Boulevard.

What are the 'rattiest' cities in the United States?

Autumn is many people's favorite season, but fall isn't just all about picturesque pumpkin patches, apple cider and cozy sweaters — it's also a time for rat infestations.

With the change in temperature comes an increase in vermin invasions, according to Orkin. The pest control company recently released a report detailing in which cities they do the most rodent treatments.

The report lists the "top 50 rattiest cities," based on how many commercial and residential rodent treatments Orkin performed between Sept. 15, 2016, and Sept. 15, 2017.

Though many think of New York City when they first think of rats, it actually came in second on the list behind Chicago — which has topped the Orkin ranking for the last three years, according to the company.

Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington followed behind New York City in that order, with Philadelphia landing in the sixth spot, up one spot from last year's list. And though Boston has a neighborhood many call "Allston Rat City," the Hub didn't make the top 10, coming in at No. 15 out of 50 cities.

Orkin entomologist Chelle Hartzer said in a video that though rats can be in every state, they tend to be more prevalent in bigger cities, because they have more people and "more people means more food source, and therefore more rodents."

"We also see them a little bit more in port cities," she added. "Ports have a lot of goods coming and going and have a lot of habitat for rodents to hide out at. But wherever you are, you have the potential to have some rodent issues."

Each year, more than 20 million rodents invade homes across the country, according to the National Pest Management Association.

Pest control company Orkin made a list of the "rattiest" cities in the country. WIKIMDIA COMMONS

Rats are particularly good at sneaking inside your home, experts say, because they can squeeze through a hole the size of a quarter or even chew their way inside.

To prevent rats from coming inside your home or business, Hartzer suggests making sure all food sources are cleaned up (even things like open pet and bird food can attract rodents), check your door and window seals for any openings to seal, especially now that the weather is changing, and if you do see any evidence of rodents, call a professional.

> "Rodents can be active year round but we're going to see more activity in the fall and the winter months when those temps start dropping on the outside."
> Chelle Hartzer

"Rodents can be active year-round but we're going to see more activity in the fall and the winter months when those temps start dropping on the outside," Hartzer said. "Those rodents are going to look for something a little bit warmer, or an extra food source they may not have outside anymore because of those cooler temperatures."

Mayor Bill de Blasio announced at the end of September that he would dedicate $750,000 to tackle rat "hot spots" on the Upper West Side, an effort to reduce rat activity in playgrounds, parks and schools. Some steps toward that goal include implementing new waste containers, increasing baiting efforts, adding more pest-control staff and ramping up enforcement of rat-related violations, like when residents and vendors litter or feed pigeons, which helps grow the rat population. This is on top of a $32 million plan to reduce the city's rat population that was announced in July.

Newark makes bid for Amazon's HQ2

"We have exactly what Amazon is looking for," Mayor Ras J. Baraka said Monday when announcing New Jersey's official proposal.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
nikki.mascali@metro.us

Since Amazon announced it was looking for a home for its forthcoming second North American headquarters last month, cities across the country have been stating their case to be the chosen location. That includes Boston, Philadelphia, 23 neighborhoods across New York City and now, Newark.

"We have exactly what Amazon is looking for, in terms of expanding their company in a city that will help them grow and where it would have real social impact," Mayor Ras J. Baraka said Monday, according to The New York Times.

Baraka announced New Jersey's official bid proposal at Rutgers Business School with Gov. Chris Christie and former Newark mayor Sen. Cory Booker. The school shares a building with Audible, an Amazon-owned audio entertainment company that employs 1,000 people.

Among Amazon's criteria for HQ2 candidate cities is a metropolitan locale with a population north of 1 million, international airport access, mass transit and the ability to offer at least 500,000 square feet of commercial space by 2019 and up to 8 million beyond 2027.

Like its neighbor city across the Hudson River, Newark meets many of Amazon's requirements for HQ2 as it is a mass transit hub, has Newark Liberty International Airport, market-rate rents and potential office space that would fit the bill.

Among the locations Newark has proposed for HQ2 is the already-existing 33 Washington St. and the Gateway Center facility near Newark Penn Station, with future development that could include 7.5 million square feet at the Mulberry Commons, South of Market or Lotus Riverfront or vacant land.

Additionally, thanks to its close proximity to the East Coast fiber optic cable, Newark can provide fast and affordable internet and broadband service.

State officials will offer up to $7 billion in tax breaks to Amazon if Newark is chosen to be the online retailer's latest venture in New Jersey. The company already has several distribution centers, with two additional ones planned that would add 2,000 employees to its current workforce of 5,500.

Amazon will accept proposals until Thursday and is expected to announce the winning HQ2 location sometime next year.

Metro-North riders will be switching from trains to buses between Wassaic and Southeast this weekend, the MTA announced Tuesday. The changes will be in effect from 10 p.m. Friday until normal service resumes early Monday morning.

Work includes renovating the Cornwall Hill Road grade crossing in Patterson and cutting brush and welding rail joints.

Beginning with the 11:28 p.m. departure from Wassaic on Friday and throughout the weekend, buses will travel to Southeast for southbound service. They will stop at the Tenmile River, Dover Plains, Harlem Valley-Wingdale, Pawling and Patterson stations.

The buses will operate 15 to 30 minutes earlier than the train's normal schedules, and the MTA urges riders to listen to announcements.

Changes for northbound service from Grand Central to Southeast will begin with the 8:52 p.m. train on Friday and will be in effect Saturday and Sunday. Buses from Southeast will stop at Patterson, Pawling, Harlem Valley-Wingdale, Dover Plains, Tenmile River and Wassaic.

SafeRideWalkSafe app keeps users safe when they're on the move

As thousands of women add their voices to the #MeToo campaign, the fact that women face sexual assault or harassment at alarming rates is becoming even more undeniable.

The stories being shared online cover an array of instances, whether in the workplace, at home or in public spaces. One app is working on keeping people safer at a time when they may be particularly vulnerable: when taking a rideshare, cab or walking alone.

SafeRideWalkSafe is a smartphone app that provides notifications to a group of your contacts when you travel. It lets users see the best route for their trip, take photos of the car's license plate or driver and customize who receives information about their trip.

When you start a ride or begin walking, SafeRideWalkSafe calculates your estimated time of arrival. At the end of your trip, it prompts you to say that you've arrived safely. If you don't confirm that button, the app informs your selected contacts via text or email that something may have gone wrong.

SafeRideWalkSafe aims to protect people traveling by cab or ride-share service, or when walking. SAFERIDEWALKSAFE FACEBOOK

"What we're trying to do is create the safest possible environment for anybody both riding and walking," said CEO Greg Czarnowski. "I think it's appropriate especially in light of the all [sexual assault] stuff coming out."

The app was developed by Russel Pergament, who works in media and publishing. He heard from reporters who had bad experiences in cabs while abroad.

"With taxicabs, one of the things we suggested is when you get in the back seat, take a picture of the medallion. That's instant identifiability and instant accountability," Czarnowski said. "Our belief has always been, in terms of discomfort in asking to take a picture, is that it makes the driver accountable. It lets them know you do have this app that is going to keep you a little bit safer and that they're on notice."

Demand Soars At NYC Medical Clini

Can This Medical Technology Possibly Eliminate Or

The Advanced Medical Treatment Every Back & Neck Pain Sufferer Needs To Kno

NYC Pain MD is a medical clinic with two locations in New York City that has made a name for itself by treating the worst cases of back or neck pain.

Here is what every back and neck pain sufferer who has failed to respond to other treatments and does not want surgery should know about one of the best treatment options available today for severe back and neck pain including when, why and where you should consider this treatment to get maximum results.

If you suffer with back, neck or nerve pain, you have probably already tried many treatments ... especially countless pain medications.

Experienced doctors understand that even though pain medications such as anti-inflammatory pain pills are part of the recommended early treatment plan for back pain... they are rarely the answer.

In most cases they have minimal, short term results (if any) and have a laundry list of potential side effects. Some being serious and even life threatening.

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there is very good option to help relieve the pain.

An option that a lot of back and neck pain sufferers may have never heard of before.

Before we get into these treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated the worst cases of back pain. Patients travel from all over to be treated at one of their clinics for all sorts of joint and muscle pain because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover is a REAL medical treatment. Not some miracle cure you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no one treatment that will help every case of back pain. And we cannot guarantee this treatment will work for you. But this treatment has already helped countless back and neck pain sufferers who had given up hope. I bet many just like you.

What is this treatment? It's called...

Radiofrequency Neurotomy

"Radiofrequncy Neurotomy" is often referred to as RF for short. Just what is "RF".

RF is a procedure that is based on the concept that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

There are many nerves around your spine and one of their jobs is to sense PAIN.

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to these nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves and slow down the pain

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, the Radio Frequency Neurotomy is scheduled and performed for longer term relief.

What Results Can You Expect?

Like all real medical procedures... results vary for individual patients. No good and ethical doctor would guarantee any exact results for any procedure... that's just not how things work and it would be less than honest.

That's being said, it is not uncommon for patients to get complete, if not significant relief of their pain shortly after the treatment.

How Long Do The Results Last?

This procedure "impaits" the nerves pain signals... it does not destroy them. Therefore, the results are safe but not completely permanent. But, many patients get relief for 6 months… 12 months…. 18 months for some even longer. The great news is - another procedure can be safely preformed for more relief if necessary.

While we cannot claim this is a complete "permanent cure" . . . it can be a godsend for so many who were in constant pain.

Really... what would it be worth if you could get out of pain for long enough so you could start enjoying your everyday life again?

Would it be worth it to be able to finally get a good night's sleep again?

How about being able to go for a simple walk or just do your basic daily chores without worrying about so much pain?

Is It Safe?

Yes. This procedure has been done countless times and continues to have an excellent safety record. It is minimally invasive and i*s not surgical.*

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti - inflammatory pain medication and physical therapy do not offer good enough results.

RF has also been found effective AFTER back surgery when patient's still feel pain.

The pain after a failed back surgery can be debilitating for some and this procedure may be the only thing that helps give you relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain And The "X" Factor

Here is the "X" factor many do not consider that might be the difference between you getting the best possible treatment or not.

Many experts suggest choosing a medical clinic that offers all these treatments and has the proper, most advanced technology all under one roof without the need for a surgical center or hospital.

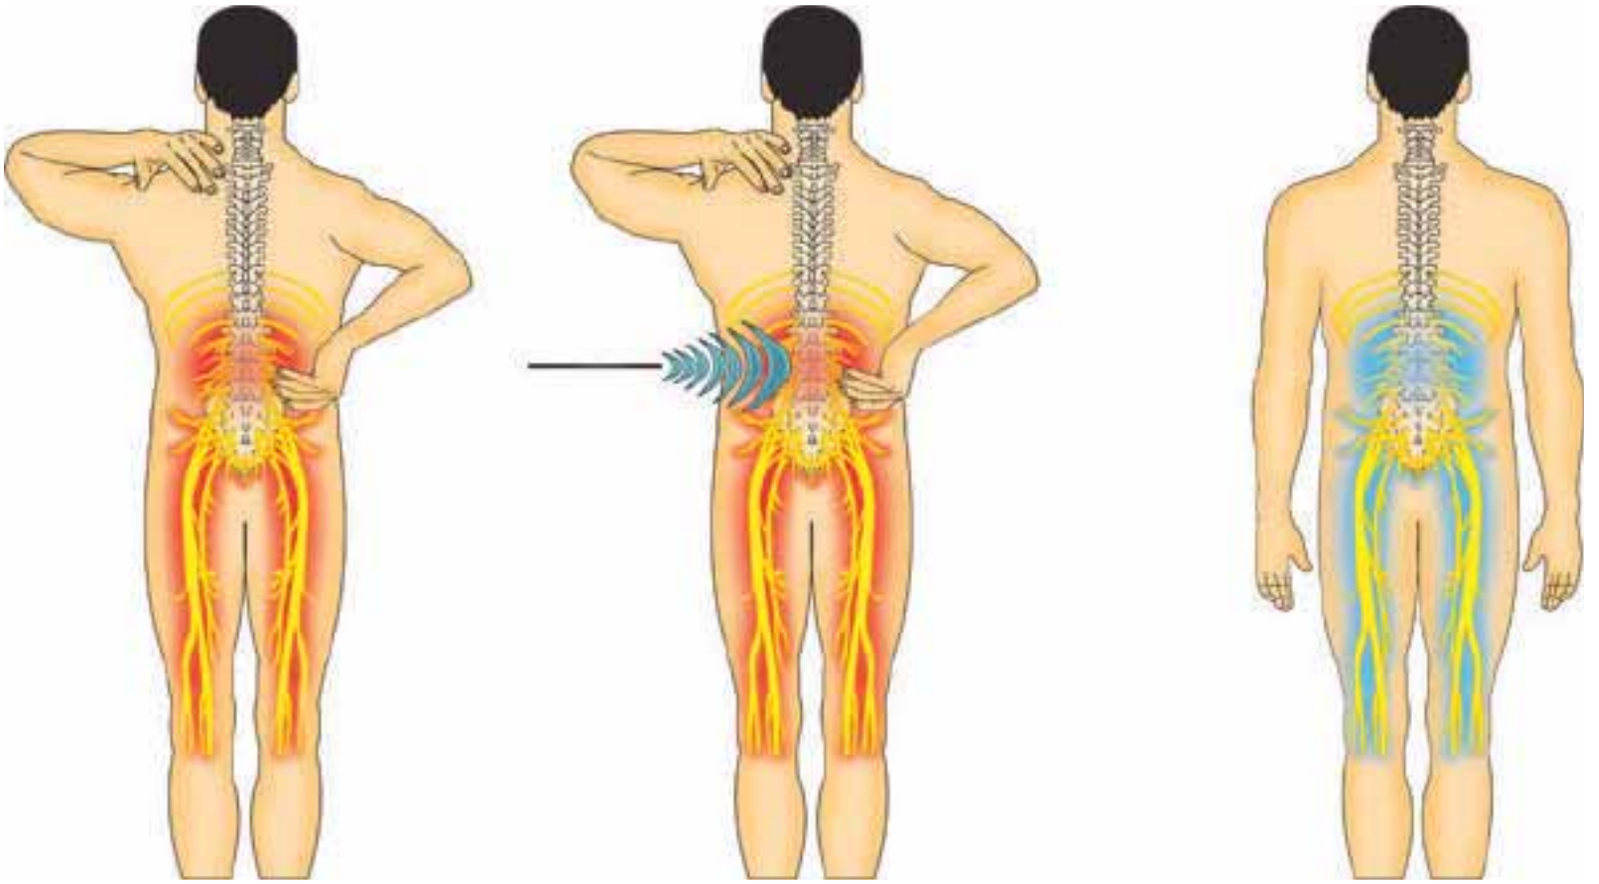
Major Savings In Time And Costs Of Care?

c For Promising Back Pain Treatment

r Greatly Reduce Even The Most Severe Back Pain...

w - No Matter How Bad The Pain Is Or How Many Other Treatments Have Failed

Advanced Treatment Uses Radio Frequencies To Relieve Serious Neck & Back Pain



Science rescues back & neck pain sufferers?: Radio Frequency Waves are used to block the nerve supply to the painful area and may alleviate pain and restore function to many NYC Pain MD's method allows you to avoid expensive hospital or out patient surgi-center facility fees which often run 3 to 4 times the cost of the procedure itself. And you don't have to go through the huge stress and time consuming process of going all over the city to outside centers. All the NYC Pain MD treatments can be done in our in-office procedure suites saving you stress, time and dollars. NYC Pain MD believes this additional "X" factor is one of the reasons so many back pain sufferers travel from all over to be treated at their advanced medical center.

Your Invitation

NYC Pain MD offers limited number of complimentary back and neck pain screenings every month. A Georgia state politician who strongly disagrees with putting a ban on bump stock sales said he would give away one of the attachments to one gun loving individual in a giveaway contest.

Georgia Sen. and GOP candidate for governor Michael Williams posted a statement to his Facebook page saying he stands in "solidarity with gun owners across the nation" and has created a contest on his website promising to offer a bump stock to "one lucky winner."

A bump stock is a device that modifies semiautomatic weapons, enabling them to function like fully automatic weapons. Stephen Paddock, the gunman responsible for the recent mass killing in Las Vegas, used a weapon modified with one of these devices.

"The tragedy in Las Vegas broke my heart, but any talk of banning or regulating bump stocks is merely cheap political lip service from career politicians," Williams said in a statement he posted to Facebook. "In reality, the bump stock is the new, shiny object politicians are using to deceive voters into believing they are taking action against gun violence," he added.

The contest, which is on the senator's website, encourages visitors to fill out an online form for the chance to win a free bump stock in the same way a person would enter try to win a new pair of headphones or tickets to a Broadway show.

Sen. Williams believes people gun owners should have the right to use bump stocks and they should not be banned or regulated. In fact, Williams claims "firearms experts" say the shooter's use of a bump stock actually prevented more people from dying due to its "inconsistency, inaccuracy, and lack of control."

"There is zero evidence that banning bump stocks would prevent any gun violence deaths," Williams said.

The Georgia governor candidate believes politicians should focus more on mental health awareness and ways to reduce gun violence and crime in inner cities. Williams continued by saying, "Blaming guns or bump stocks for the actions of a lunatic, is the same as blaming McDonald's for heart disease."

ISIS DEFEAT

ISIS defeated in Raqqa, the militants' Syrian capital

U.S.-backed militias in Syria declared victory over ISIS in its capital Raqqa on Tuesday, raising flags over the last jihadist footholds after a four-month battle.

The fighting was over and the alliance of Kurdish and Arab militias was clearing the city's stadium of mines and any remaining militants, said Rojda Felat, commander of the Raqqa campaign for the Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF).

A formal declaration of victory in Raqqa will soon be made, once the city has been cleared of mines and any possible ISIS sleeper cells, said SDF spokesman Talal Selo.

In Washington, the U.S. military said that about 90 percent of Raqqa had been retaken from ISIS, but it expected the SDF to face pockets of resistance.

The fall of Raqqa, where ISIS staged euphoric parades after its string of lightning victories in 2014, is a symbol of the jihadist movement's collapsing fortunes.

ISIS has lost much of its territory in Syria and Iraq this year, including its most prized possession, Mosul. In Syria, it has been forced back into a strip of the Euphrates valley and surrounding desert.

The SDF, backed by a U.S.-led alliance, has been fighting since June to take the city which ISIS used to plan attacks abroad.

The fighters and commanders clasped their arms round each other, smiling, in a battle-scarred landscape of rubble and ruined buildings around the main square.

Fighters hauled down the black flag of ISIS, the last still flying over the city, from the National Hospital near the stadium.

"We do still know there are still IEDs [improvised explosive devices] and booby traps in and amongst the areas that ISIS once held, so the SDF will continue to clear deliberately through areas," said Col. Ryan Dillon, a spokesman for the coalition.

EPA now says 5,000 chest X-rays' worth of radiation exposure is safe

The previous safety level: 0.

@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

EPA head Scott Pruitt has been criticized for holding views that contradict science. GETTY IMAGES

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has declared that radiation levels equivalent to thousands of chest X-rays are safe for first responders to a nuclear emergency, an about-face from previous safety standards. Ten years ago, the agency said no amount of radiation exposure was safe.

The new guidelines, which were published in September, have activist groups worried that the Trump administration will use them as a pretense for rolling back regulations.

"It's really a huge amount of radiation they are saying is safe," Daniel Hirsch, the retired director of the environmental and nuclear policy program at the University of California, Santa Cruz, told Bloomberg. "The position taken could readily unravel all radiation protection rules."

The new guidelines were published in a September 2017 EPA advisory document on response to a nuclear emergency. "According to radiation safety experts, radiation exposures of 5-10 rem usually result in no harmful health effects, because radiation below these levels is a minor contributor to our overall cancer risk," the EPA said in the document. That level is equivalent to nearly 5,000 chest X-rays or seven to 14 chest CT scans, Bloomberg noted.

The 2007 version of that document said that no level of radiation was safe and that "the current body of scientific knowledge tells us this."

The new advisory does not change any federal laws. "EPA has not changed its standards regarding radiation exposure, and no protective guidelines were changed during this administration," EPA spokeswoman Liz Bowman said. "We are simply providing more supporting resources."

EPA head Scott Pruitt has been criticized for holding views that contradict science. Notably, he has questioned whether human activity is responsible for climate change. "I knew that under Scott Pruitt, EPA is in climate denial, but now it appears to be in radiation denial, as well," says Jeff Ruch, executive director of the Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility. "This appears to be another case of the Pruitt EPA proclaiming conclusions exactly opposite the overwhelming weight of scientific research."

Ninety-two percent of people live in places with excessive air pollution. GETTY IMAGES

No one is safe from air pollution — not even unborn babies

The World Health Organization estimates that 92 percent of people live in places where air pollution is higher than accepted levels.

Even the unborn are at risk, according to a new study published in the journal JAMA Pediatrics. European researchers studied 641 Belgian newborns and found that the babies born to mothers exposed to higher levels of nitrates, sulfates and large carbon particles had shorter telomeres than other babies.

Telomeres are DNA structures found at the end of each chromosome that protect the "data" of each chromosome, making it easier for cells to divide. The telomeres also shorten with each division. So, the babies born with shorter telomeres have cells that will age faster than other babies.

And the shortening is not insignificant: According to the researchers, babies born to mothers exposed to higher levels of air pollution had 13.2 percent shorter telomeres in their placenta cells and 8.8 percent shorter telomere in their cord blood cells. MEAGAN MORRIS Feet Hurt? Bunions? Hammertoes? Heel Pain?

Platelet Rich Plasma Therapy (PRP)

A new approach for treating Tendon Injuries for the Achilles, Tendonitis and Plantar Fasciitis (Heel and Arch Pain)

Take The Foot Health Checkup

- My toenails are streaked, discolored and thickened.
- The sides of my toenails dig into the skin and hurt.
- I have a large bump behind my big toe (or little toe) which is always red.
- I get an extremely painful "cramp" in the area of my third and fourth toes when wearing shoes.
- My toes aren't straight- they are all cocked-up, bent and hurt.
- I have painful calluses on the ball of my foot which keep building up.
- I have corns on my toes which get thick no matter what shoe size I wear.
- The bottom of my heel hurts all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning.
- I have cramps in my legs which always happen when I walk the same distance.
- My ankles are swollen most of the time.
- My feet are always dry and scaly – sometimes they itch.
- My feet just hurt all over when I stand or walk a lot.
- I have numbness, burning, infection, persistent pain, skin rash, or open sores.

Your Highness, the royal baby, has a due date

Hold on to your proverbial hats: Prince William and Kate Middleton have announced the due date for their third royal baby.

"Their Royal Highnesses The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge are delighted to confirm they are expecting a baby in April," Kensington Palace wrote in a statement Tuesday. The lil' babe will join big brother Prince George, 4, and big sister Princess Charlotte, 2.

The couple — who appear to just love procreating — stepped out Monday for a surprise appearance to meet Paddington Bear. And Kate, who has been battling severe morning sickness, danced with the small man in the bear's outfit, appearing to have what some people would call "a good time."

Great news, then! As long as this damn baby doesn't upstage anything between Prince Harry and Meghan Markle, everything should be fine.

And we'll never be rooooyals.

The Gaines are still talking

In late September, Chip and Joanna Gaines announced that the next season of "Fixer Upper" would be their last. Then they explained why. Now they're explaining why again, because … well, honestly, there doesn't appear to be a reason.

The couple stopped by "Today" on Tuesday to promote Chip's new book, of course — and to also wax poetic on deciding to leave their hit show. Again.

After saying that their relationship is "as healthy as they've ever been," Chip acknowledged those pesky theories about the twosome being on the rocks.

"The most important thing in the world is Jo and I's relationship, followed very quickly by these four beautiful kids," he said. "And we didn't want to push it, red line it, for so long that we woke up and realized, we are at a point of no return. So, we wanted to take a step back." OK!

We're predicting next week, they conveniently open up again and say… pretty much the same thing.

These two just can't stop, can they?

Robert Pattinson leans on Katy Perry

Robert Pattinson — he of the very chiseled chin bones — recently split from fiancee FKA Twigs (real name, Tahliah Barnett). And now, he appears to be taking a sort of creature comfort in his longtime friend Katy Perry. Which leaves just one question: But why?

E! reports that since the breakup, Pattinson has been leaning on his good friend Katy Perry. How these two are friends is really just a mystery, frankly. "Rob has been leaning a lot on Katy since his split with FKA Twigs," another source shares with the outlet. "Kate has always been a good friend to Rob over the years and has been there for him emotionally." Mmkay!

Hopefully these two people who we don't know and/or have any personal investment in won't get together. But if they do, I mean, that's also fine. Do you, y'all!

It's his time of need, or whatever.

J. Law shares story of Hollywood harassment

In the wake of the Harvey Weinstein sexual-harassment and -assault allegations, Jennifer Lawrence is the latest celeb to speak out about the "degrading" and "humiliating" experiences that are all too common for a working actress in Hollywood today.

At the Elle Women in Hollywood Awards on Monday, the "Mother!" actress said that early on in her career, she was told by a producer to lose 15 pounds in two weeks, and that another actress had been fired from the project for failing to lose weight in time.

It gets worse.

"During this time a female producer had me do a nude line-up with about five women who were much, much, thinner than me. We all stood side-by-side with only tape on covering our privates," she said, adding that the producer told her to "use the naked photos of myself as inspiration for my diet."

When she tried to stand up for herself, she recalled, another producer told her "he didn't know why everyone thought I was so fat, he thought I was 'perfectly f—ckable.'"

‘Una’ brings a painful past to a problematic present

Rooney Mara and Ben Mendelsohn deal with their dark secrets.

This psychological thriller makes “SVU” look like a children’s show.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
gregory.wakeman@metro.us

Rooney Mara, Ben Mendelsohn and director Benedict Andrews have received global praise for “Una,” one of the most thought-provoking films of the year that’s also sure to leave you feeling very uncomfortable. They talked with Metro about the stage-to-big-screen story and the process of working with some pretty grizzly subject matters.

In the film Mara plays Una, a woman who was in a sexual relationship with Mendelsohn when she was just 13. After being incarcerated for his actions, Mendelsohn changes his name, reinvents himself, gets married … only for Una to disrupt everything with her arrival 15 years later. And she wants some answers.

Tell us about the process of making such an intense movie

Mara: “I went to see (the play) blindly, in a matinee, and I was just blown away … I can feel empathy for just about anyone. I feel that it’s important to be able to do that. My experience with the material is so wrapped up in my feelings of it. I don’t see (Una) as just a victim. I see her as much more complicated than that.”

Mendelsohn: “I knew what I was going into when I signed up for it. Going into film it it’s thrilling — it’s an amazing psychological thriller. I think there’s a time for thinking about the character, but it’s not when you’re doing it. Rooney is one of the most immediate actors I have ever worked with. It’s like table tennis, you’re very close, and you need to react because that ball is coming back over the net fast.”

Andrews: “When I watch it with an audience I’m aware of this claustrophobia, but I also see it as this diving bell. You can feel the audience as they go deeper and deeper down with the two of them. It’s an uncomfortable place, but they feel compelled to stay with them. We had to find the cinematic equivalent of how to take the audience ever deeper as the characters go deeper and deeper into themselves. Their relationship is so private. And part of that claustrophobia is that we're drawn into that private knot between the two of them."

What do you want audiences to take away from "Una"?
"The film kind of intelligently unpacks a lot of the moral questions," says Andrews. "You know, does someone have the right to a new life? What's it like to not be able to let go of the past? There's no condoning what happened — it's clear it f—d up a lot of lives. That's the beginning point; we already know this is wrong. We want to get people talking and arguing about the story, inviting the audience into this uncomfortable grey area provoking conversation. The film doesn't aim to give easy moral lessons, or let people off the hook, but I believe the power of its strength is it is tender."

Why don't we see films like this more often?
Andrews: "It is a real hard film to get made. I wasn't thinking about it; I was too naïve. Now I realize it's a miracle that the it gets a release. Because of the subject matter."
Mendelsohn: "It's very unusual that you get such a storied and deep exploration of character-to-character. In fact, I don't think I've ever done anything that has the intensity of this with just one other character. Of just consequence, story line and scenes. And I don't think I ever will again because they don't come along very often."
Andrews, again: "That's something specific to this. I don't necessarily think all films should be like "Una." This is a very claustrophobic encounter, and that is its specific flavor. My next film will be much more epic, because there are other notes to play."

"Una" is now in cinemas.

When the most challenging and powerful thing to do is just 'Breathe'

Discover the heart-warming true story of a love that couldn't be stopped by disability.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
gregory.wakeman@metro.us

It's hard to imagine being struck down in your prime and paralyzed from the neck down by a disease that has now nearly been eradicated from the planet, but that's exactly what happened to Robin Cavendish. He was given only months to live, but his determined wife, Diana, refused to watch her husband wither away in the hospital and insisted he become the first polio patient to live a rich, full life with family and friends. And the medical world was changed forever.

Played by big screen Brit Andrew Garfield (as Robin) and small screen Queen from "The Crown" Claire Foy (as Diana), the film follows a traditional love story, until tragedy strikes when Robin contracts polio. But grief and pain give way to resilience as the couple vow to see Robin thrive at a time when others with his diagnosis were locked away to die.

We asked Foy what drew her to the character of Diana and she said, "Everything, really. It really was a foregone conclusion when I read the script. The humor, the love, and the characters refuse to see themselves as downtrodden in any way." In fact, that's a theme that's linked to her last famous role (as Queen Elizabeth II). "The generation that grew up in the war had a very clear frame of reference. Not only 'Keep calm and carry on,' but also that life throws you all kinds of problems. The idea of complaining about your lot and navel-gazing — what we all do now — they'd be like, 'Why bother? What's wrong with you?' They weirdly live in the moment. Taking each breath as it comes. And that's so true of people when they're ill. One person makes a joke, and that moment of levity cracks through the horror. It means people are able to be more open."

Claire Foy and Andy Serkis
GETTY IMAGES

Foy is charming as ever as the backbone of the family, but what was it like for director Andy Serkis to find a lead who could emote with his entire body at first, and then be limited to the neck up? "We went on a long search to find Robin. [Garfield] just responded to the script. I knew he would. Because he's such an incredibly positive, versatile and physical actor. And we wanted someone who was an athletic actor because we wanted to really feel the loss of that athleticism, and being nailed down to just his facial expressions. And [Foy] is so honest and truthful, and is perfect for Diana because she lives in the moment, doesn't suffer fools, and has a directness and wit to her."

"Breathe" is in theaters now.

Find a budget home on Amazon

For a couple thousand, you could get the prefabricated abode you've always dreamed of.

TheRealDeal.com is a daily blog and monthly magazine covering real estate in the New York metro area.
THE REAL DEAL

Home buying is down among millennials, but maybe Amazon can offer a ray of hope.

The online retailer sells prefabricated houses for between about $3,500 to $36,000 in different sizes and styles, so you can pick out your dream home from the comfort of your couch or bed and get it delivered.

It's a time-tested approach to saving money and getting a place to lay your head; people used to do in the old days too — only they ordered their kit homes out of catalogs — and, a century later, these mail-order homes are worth big bucks.

The catch is that most houses aren't on Prime, and the land where you could assemble your new place is, obviously, not included. Those details aside, if you went house shopping for an Amazon house, which one would you get? E.K. HUDSON

Now you can buy furniture for your pet at Ikea

The Swedish retailer has released a line of pet-centric goods called Lurvig, Swedish for "shaggy."

KATE MOONEY
kate.mooney@metro.us

Pet furniture: It's a thing. Ikea has released a line for the furry dependents in your life, adorably named Lurvig, which is Swedish for "shaggy." Now when you go shopping at Ikea for your Billy bookcase, Stockholm rug or Ektorp sofa, you can throw in a piece or two for Fido or Felix, whether it's a cat-scratch mat that wraps around a table leg, or a doggy/cat bed that looks like a mini-loveseat.

According to the press release, head designer Inma Bermudéz wanted to create the Cat scratching mat, $5.99

Relieve your feline's cat-scratch fever and let her get some stretching in via this mat that wraps around a table leg, turning into a "scratching tree."

Cat/dog bed, $49.99

This black bed for canines or felines looks like a one-cushion mini -loveseat. It unfolds into a reclining bed in case they want to stretch out their limbs.

Cushion, $7.99

It's a nice idea that your pet might want a body pillow to lounge on. This cushion comes in six color combinations and has a removable cover, so you can easily wash it when your animal inevitably dirties it up.

The cat/dog bed is like a mini-loveseat for your pet. IKEA products from "a pet's perspective," so she consulted with veterinarian Dr. Barbara Schäfer, who has also worked with Ikea on product-risk assessment.

"Our pets have their own personalities, but they have five things in common: They love sleeping, eating, playing and exercising, and being close to us. So these behaviors have been the first thing on our minds when designing these products," Bermudez explained. Schäfer and Bermudez prioritized safety, making sure that the pieces were made of durable materials that would hold up when subjected to typical pet behaviors, such as chewing and scratching.

At the same time, they also sought to make the pet line compatible with human wares. For example, the Lurvig pet cushion has a removable cover, so owners can fill it with old clothes and the "pets get a comfortable cushion with comfortable, familiar smells, too," according to Bermudez.

Here are the niftiest finds for our furry friends from the new collection (according to our human eyes, that is). You could always ditch the line and repurpose old Ikea furniture to make it pet-friendly, like the Ikea hackers have done.

Slow-feed bowl, $4.99

If your dog is the type who inhales his food, this bowl has a raised area in the center, designed to slow him down and prevent an upset stomach.

Cat house on legs, $54.98

You can prop up this cat house on legs, mount it on the wall or slide it into an Ikea Kallax shelving unit, if you have one. Maybe switch it up to keep your cat entertained.

New York Yankees DH Gary Sanchez's two-RBI double in the eighth inning lifted the Bronx Bombers to a 6-4, ALCS Game 4 victory on Tuesday night from Yankee Stadium. New York has come back from two games down to tie the series. GETTY IMAGES

Yanks pull off comeback, even ALCS

The Yankees scored six unanswered runs in their final two turns at bat to down the Astros on Tuesday night in the Bronx.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The New York Yankees overcame a 4-0 deficit in their final two offensive innings of Game 4 of the ALCS to defeat the Houston Astros, 6-4, on Tuesday night at Yankee Stadium, evening the series at two games apiece.

Gary Sanchez came up with what proved to be a game-winning two-run double in the bottom of the eighth off Astros closer Ken Giles, capping off a four-run inning that put the Yankees in the lead for good.

Two batters earlier, Aaron Judge had tied the game with a run-scoring double of his own as he continues to work out of his postseason slump on a night he also launched a solo home run to start the Yankees' rally in the seventh.

ALCS GAME 4 FINAL

His double officially dug New York out of a hole it fell into during the sixth inning when Yuli Gurriel smacked a three-run double to break open a pitcher's duel between Sonny Gray and Houston's Lance McCullers Jr.

Gray had been the odd man out of the Yankees playoff rotation, not making a start since Game 1 of the ALDS against the Cleveland Indians where he allowed three runs and walked four in 3.1 innings.

McCullers had been used sparingly as a reliever during the postseason after a difficult second half that was brought about by back problems.

In the first half of the season, he was one of the best pitchers in baseball, posting a 7-1 record and 2.69 ERA.

He regained that first-half form on Tuesday night as his arsenal was on point.

With the Yankees attacking McCullers' offerings early and often, the Houston pitcher's ability to keep the ball down in the zone ensured that New York batters couldn't get a good piece of it.

It kept his pitch count low as he didn't throw more than 17 pitches in a single inning through the first six, allowing just one hit.

Gray was just as solid, allowing one hit of his own, but he ran into trouble in the sixth when he gave up a lead-off walk to George Springer and Josh Reddick was awarded first base after being interfered with by catcher Austin Romine.

After throwing one ball to Jose Altuve, manager Joe Girardi pulled Gray for David Robertson, who proceeded to walk the Houston star.

Robertson struck out Carlos Correa but gave up the double to Gurriel to give Houston the lead.

The Astros added one more in the seventh after Starlin Castro slipped while fielding Brian McCann's grounder, allowing Marwin Gonzalez to score from second base after he ripped a double to right-center.

Judge finally got to McCullers in the seventh, launching a lead-off solo home run to put the Yankees on the board. That was the only blemish on McCullers' night as he was pulled immediately after by A.J. Hinch.

In came Chris Devenski, who was greeted by a triple from Didi Gregorius. He scored on Sanchez's sacrifice fly to make it a 4-2 game.

The Yankees kept pressing into the eighth against Joe Musgrove when a lead-off single by Todd Frazier was followed by a double from Chase Headley to put runners on second and third with nobody out.

A grounder to second by Brett Gardner scored Frazier to pull New York within one before Judge's double tied things up.

While it might not have been feasible a few nights ago, the Yankees are heading into Game 5 with a chance to an ALCS lead in what will be the final game in the Bronx this series.

Projecting 2017-18 Nets starters

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

What a difference a few months made for the Brooklyn Nets.

A team that has won a combined 41 games over the past two years has a new-look roster and hope that they won't be at the very bottom of a weak Eastern Conference this season.

Is this a playoff team? Probably not. But they should be much improved compared to the last two seasons.

Here is how we think their starting five will look like this season:

OPENING NIGHT
7 P.M.
YES NETWORK

NETS VS. PACERS

JEREMY LIN — PG

Injuries cut Lin's first season with the Nets to just 36 games, an unsuccessful opening to a three-year, $38.3 million contract. Now back to full health, Lin should put together a nice season as Brooklyn's floor general thanks to his offensive aggression that opens up the floor for him and his teammates.

D'ANGELO RUSSELL — SG

Russell has been given a new lease on life after being dealt from the Lakers. Falling out of a favor on a Los Angeles team stacked with a young core, including Jordan Clarkson, Russell has a chance to be the man with the Nets. Expect him to be the team's top scorer this season and thriving in an offense that loves to play fast.

ALLEN CRABBE — SF

The Nets finally got their man in Crabbe after two years of pursuit. While Lin and Russell slash the opposing defense apart, Crabbe can be a solid catch-and-shoot option if the opposing defense collapses around said drivers. If he is able to maintain a three-point shooting percentage of over 40, the Nets are in good shape.

TREVOR BOOKER — PF

While DeMarre Carroll is an option here, it might be best to have him almost platoon with Crabbe at the 3. That allows Booker to feed off a 2016-17 season in which he recorded 16 double-doubles, which was more than Myles Turner and Jimmy Butler, as he will be looked upon by the Nets as a menace on the glass.

TIMOFEY MOZGOV — C

The 7'1" big man who came over from the Lakers in the Lopez deal will have one job and one job only: get under the basket. He's not here for his offensive game, but Mozgov brings an intimidating presence to the low post and a big target for Lin and Russell to look toward. If he can finish, he'll find new life in Brooklyn.

Aries Temptation will lead to you being influenced by someone you love or look up to. Refuse to be swayed by others. Make up your mind based on what's best for you.

Taurus Stay focused on your goal. A physical change may be necessary. Getting along with your peers will require patience and respect. Don't take on too much.

Gemini Don't get angry when you can get moving. It's up to you to do your research and follow through with your plans. Love is highlighted.

Cancer Partnerships must be handled carefully. Use your intelligence, experience and the facts to sort out any differences you face. Overreacting won't solve a problem.

Leo Don't let annoyances at home or when dealing with friends or family get to you. See what you can do to help improve your community and those in dire need.

Virgo Take an interest in personal finances and how to stretch your money further. A small change can help you cut your overhead. Do your best to avoid a minor injury.

Libra Look at your relationships honestly. Determine what makes you happy and favor the people who contribute to your success. Walk away from excessive people.

Scorpio Think about what's going on before setting your sights on something new. Have a strategy in place and stick to a budget to come out ahead.

Sagittarius Pay more attention to your appearance. Update your image to get a better response from people you want to do business with.

Capricorn Emotional matters will escalate when dealing with a sibling, friend or someone trying to take advantage of you. Don't let anger take control. Know when to walk away.

Aquarius Share your feelings and concerns. Don't make a financial change unless you are certain it will pay off. Taking on too much mentally will come at a costly toll.

Pisces Going along with the crowd isn't in your best interest. Take your position and stand by it, no matter what others decide to do. EUGENIA LAST
